Deaths in Centurion after receiving vaccination

The Pretoria Centurion Rekord, have in two successive weeks reported on the loss of life as a result of contacting the Covid 19 virus after being vaccinated.

In its July 16 edition it wrote under the heading “Covid 19 claims life of veteran councilman”, of the death of Councillor Clive Napier of the Tshwane Metro, from Covid 19 virus complications. As we all had to do with him during debates at council meetings in the past, this came as a shock to us. What was particularly interesting is what was said in the conclusion of the article in the following quote from the family: “Clive went for his Covid 19 vaccination and contracted the virus twelve days later. He was admitted to hospital for a little more than a week, and Tuesday we received the shocking news.”

The second article appeared in the July 23 edition under the heading, “Family torn as Covid 19 claims son and dad.” It was reported that a centurion mother was in mourning after the loss of her son (43) and a day later her husband (69) due to the virus, while another son and her daughter in law are recovering in hospital. The son was receiving speech therapy after the virus had seriously affected his speech and mobility. The report stated that both she and her 69-year-old husband received the Covid vaccine on June 11th before her family became ill. She herself experienced “mild symptoms” of the virus and had almost fully recovered.

Many people, all over the world, have contracted the virus shortly after being vaccinated, with thousands already having died as a result. No wonder there is growing scepticism, not only of the efficacy of the vaccines, but also of the short and long term effects on human health.
